BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICHD. RATCLIFFE,

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co. Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. For Sale or Lease,

THE following tracts of land in Charles county, Maryland: one lying on the Potomac, at the mouth of Pomonkey creek, containing three hundred and forty acres, about 16 miles from Alexandria, the larger portion level land, of a stiff soil, well adapted to the cultivation of corn, wheat and tobacco, and equal in fertility to any in the neighborhood. On this farm is one of the most elegant sites for building of all those fine heights which border the Potomac, commanding the most extensive view of the adjacent country, both in Virginia and Maryland, for more than twenty miles up and down the river: located in a genteel neighborhood, it would make an agreeable residence, and from its proximity to market, with the advantage of the best navigation, an extremely profitable farm.—The tenant's houses would accommodate the negroes for its cultivation.

A Tract, about one mile back from the former, containing 334 acres, a large portion in wood, white and red oak, and some chesnut; the remainder a tenement in tolerable repair, the whole a high stiff soil, similar to the one above mentioned.

A Tract, lying at the mouth of Mattawoman Creek, about 25 miles from Alexandria, the whole first rate flat river land, now completely enclosed.—On this tract is a noted fishery, called Rum Point, at which there has been cleared upwards of two thousand dollars per annum, and where independent of the fish sold on the shore, there might be put up from one to two thousand barrels every season; besides the profits of the fishery, the advantage of manuring the farm with the offal of the shore, the whole, with a small portion of industry, might be made to produce ten barrels of corn per acre. On the shore, are a dwelling house, houses for holding salt, and curing any quantity of fish, and for the accommodation of hands.

A Tract, lying about 1½ miles from the last mentioned, containing 236 acres, more than 200 of which are in wood and would cut from 25 to 30 cords per acre, within one mile of the river, where wood has rarely sold for less than five dollars per cord. It will be divided into 50 or 25 acre lots, to suit purchasers.—If preferred, the wood will be sold standing, for so much per acre.

If not disposed of, previous to the first day of Sept. next, the above mentioned arable lands, will be leased out, upon advantageous terms, for five or seven years, at the option of the lessees.

Application to be made to the subscriber, residing near the head of Mattawoman Creek, Charles county, Maryland.

SATURDAY, JULY 24, 1819.

The fact is now proved by experiment, that the rapid waters of the Missouri are accessible by steam. This furnishes a most important era in the history of our internal improvements. It opens a communication to the interior of the country to an extent beyond what imagination can conceive. An attempt is shortly to be made on the waters of the Yellow Stone river, and no doubt is entertained of its success. "Westward the Star of Empire points the way," we believe was formerly an expression of an English poet, while contemplating the future destinies of the American continent. The expression now derives double force and pungency from the excess of emigration: for, in this point of view, the star of empire does indeed point to the west. It is now ascertained it is said, on good evidence, that the waters of the Missouri, are as accessible by steam as that of the Ohio or the Mississippi.—Now, that the grand parent stream is subdued, is in fact compelled to pass under the triumphal arch erected by victorious art, all the tributary streams will be compelled to pay homage. By this noble conquest, the invention of steam will be rendered as perennial as the flow of the Missouri. We do not wonder that European nations should contend with us for the honor of this invention; the point has been long a subject of altercation, nor is it even at this day fully settled by evidence. But while this point remains undecided, no doubt at all remains on the question, who improved the power of this tremendous agent and disciplined it to use.—Our rapid and almost interminable rivers did not appear a scope enough for American enterprize—the Ocean, presented a broader and more comprehensive field for the energies of our countrymen. His dominion is now subjected to the power of steam, and this victory was first achieved by Americans. No wonder that such enterprize has excited the envy of European writers—it is a subject worthy of their envy—worthy of the only homage that an envious heart can render—the homage of slander and abuse. European authors have found out another source of consolation: they have laid it down as a principle never at least to be doubted by them, that such enterprize acting on so broad a scale as that of a vast continent, cannot be of long continuance. This is a point which these politicians have established very much to their own satisfaction. But unless they have some means inaccessible to common mortals, of consulting the records of futurity, we are utterly at a loss to conceive how they have established so conclusively, a fact, which they must confess is not at the present moment in existence. In the mean time, it only remains for our countrymen to disappoint these benevolent predictions, by still cherishing the government of their choice.

Many years, and perhaps centuries may roll around, before the European world may present such a spectacle as it has recently done. When all the civilized world was in arms, it was impossible for Americans, connected as they were by so many ties, natural, political and commercial, to remain calm spectators of the contest.—This turbulent state of the world, rendered the political parties in this country in some measure the representatives of the belligerent parties of Europe. Now, party will not assume such an extirpating character: manufactures, commerce, agriculture, sectional interests, will break up this formidable confederated mass of party, into small fragments, comparatively insignificant to what it once was, and incapable of being joined together again in a solid and permanent shape. All this is auspicious both to the growth and concentration of our republican habits.

An English writer in attempting to maintain his favorite dogma, that the U. States cannot remain as an independent nation in their present form, mentions this fact, that they constitute the only republic now existing on the surface of the globe. How this fact is brought to bear as an evidence of the truth of his assertion, we are, we must confess, utterly at a loss to conceive.

He proves nothing more than the simple fact, that the U. States do constitute the only remaining republic.

He neither proves that all the monarchies will follow our example, nor that we shall follow the example of those monarchies, and the whole amount of his argument may be thus compendiously summed up, that a monarchy is a monarchy, and that a republic is a republic. We observe the free principles of our constitution gradually diffusing themselves, even in the midst of the most despotic governments; so that the very fact advanced by this writer, is in flat opposition to his hypothesis. It proves that these monarchies are gradually adopting the principles of "the only republic:" it proves that not all the splendor of a royal diadem can dazzle from the eye, those simple and plain truths which preserve a native, inherent and solitary grandeur, in comparison with which crowns and sceptres lose their lustre.

Philadelphia, July 20.

In speaking of the letter from Cadiz, published in the Register of Saturday last, the New-York Gazette says: "The letter being grounded upon circumstances originating in mistake, it is proper to state the facts, to prevent false conclusions.—We learn from a gentleman who was at Cadiz at the time, that on the morning referred to, the Spanish, British and French ships of war, at sunrise, were dressed in the various flags, including that of the United States, which was hoisted at the mizen-mast head of the Spanish 74's, where it remained until three o'clock. At this time it was lowered, as no colors were hoisted on board the Hornet, the captain of her being at the time at Madrid. The First Lieutenant of the Hornet, on being informed that the flag of his country had been properly displayed, dressed his vessel as described by the letter. It is evident, that there was no intentional neglect on either side—Had the officers of the Hornet perceived the American flag, as they were by several masters of American vessels, the compliment would have been returned at an earlier period, by displaying the Spanish flag on board the Hornet."

APPARENT DEATH BY LIGHTNING.

An esteemed friend, in consequence of the suggestion of a late writer intimating that benefit might arise from the publication of any facts relative to the recovery of persons from apparent death by lightning by the use of cold water, has handed us the following from the Paladium of 1804.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Stoughton, in the county of Norfolk, to his friend, in this town, dated June the 6th 1804.

On Monday last, between the hours of 11 and 12 A. M. we experienced a small shower, accompanied with considerable thunder and lightning. Previous to the shower when the clouds had not much collected, and the thunder rolled only at a distance, we were alarmed with a sudden and tremendous peal, which seemed to burst upon the house over our heads. Most of the family were extremely agitated, and my little daughter was fainting. After attending to her a few minutes, I went out, expecting to discover some effects of the lightning. I examined the house, and outbuildings, but made no discovery. Soon however, I cast my eye towards the little thicket of houses near the meeting house, where I observed a collection of people, in apparent commotion. Apprehensive that some person might be injured, but unwilling to leave home, on account of the situation of some of the family, I sent a boy to make inquiry. He returned with the information that Mr. Lewis Johnson was struck with lightning and supposed to be dead. I immediately ran to the place where he was, (the distance being between 40 and 50 rods,) on my arrival was told that he was dead. I found that they had actually closed his eyes, and as usual, were preparing to put on a bandage to support his jaw, which was fallen. They had sent for Dr. Adams; but he had not arrived.—Recollecting to have seen an account of the efficacy of cold water when applied to persons apparently killed with lightning, I caused a similar application to be made, which succeeded beyond my most sanguine expectations. A bucket of water was thrown upon him—it was repeated—he soon exhibited signs of life and began to gasp. At this moment the Doctor arrived and opened a vein in his arm. The application of cold water was still continued, and no less than six buckets were poured upon him. Symptoms of returning life increased. In about half an hour he spoke; and in an hour he walked, with assistance into the house. Complaining of extreme chillness, he was wrapped in flannel, and laid on a bed. From the moment of his resuscitation he was exercised with violent pains in the breast, back and limbs, and particularly in his joints. These pains continued without intermission, during the day and following night. But being again bled, and taking cooling physic, the pains on Tuesday morning, began to abate, and have since continued gradually to decrease. He is now in a state of convalescence, though extremely feeble, and not entirely free from pain. The hair on the back part of his head was considerably singed, his skin in several places burnt, the shoe on his left foot rent in pieces; but his clothes received no injury.

From the facts above stated, it appears that the copious application of cold water was the means, in the hand of Divine Providence, of rescuing Mr. Johnson from a premature grave, restoring to his family their head and support, and to society a useful member.

Description of the Patent Hydraulic Orrery, now exhibiting at 216 Broadway, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.

This new and singularly original invention exhibits the motion of the Earth round the Sun, and of the Moon round the Earth and the Sun. The axis of the Earth preserves a uniform parallel obliquity to the ecliptic (or plane of its motion,) and the plane of the Moon's course has its due inclination to that of the Earth. The causes of the seasons are shown by the first, and of eclipses by the second. The movements take place with the most harmonious regularity, and the display is of a nature to captivate every one duly sensible to the order, beauty, and magnificence displayed in the great creation.

But not the least interesting part of this invention consists in the "modus operandi" or manner of imitating the natural evolutions of the spheres, in the total absence of wheel-work. A circular reservoir, 5 feet diameter, and 7 inches deep, is filled with water; in the centre, a small shaft supports the Sun, (a ball nine inches diameter,) towards the circumference, but connected by an arbour in the centre, floats a circular vessel sixteen inches diameter and four inches deep, with a double rim—the inner circle being filled with water admitted from beneath through small apertures provided near the centre for that purpose; above the centre of this vessel the Earth, (a ball four inches diameter, is raised about two feet, and placed with its axis inclined in an angle of 23 deg. 30 min. Upon the water received into the inner rim floats a second vessel, connected also by an arbor to the centre, from the circumference of which the Moon (a ball one inch diameter) is erected. The bottom of this vessel is pierced, and a small siphon, or crane is fixed in the aperture, while its longer leg, closed at the bottom, but having a lateral aperture, depends in the circular vacuous zone between the double rims of the first described floating vessel & discharges water laterally therein, while in consequence of the vacated lateral aquatic pressure within the siphon, resulting from this very aperture, the vessel sustaining the Moon travels in a direction contrary to that of the diminution and the Moon is borne rapidly round the Earth. The obliquy of the orbit is produced by elevating the lunar sphere upon the summit of a small sliding rod, from the lower extremity of which a thread is extended to a small crank in the central shaft, supporting the Earth. This eccentricity produces an alternate elevation and depression at each revolution, and thus, in combination with the horizontal circle, the proper orbicular inclination is constantly preserved. The parallelism of the Earth's axis is maintained by carrying this shaft through the larger floating vessel, and affixing a pulley to its lower extremity, while a small twine, acting as a band, is carried round it, and an equal, but fixed, pulley attached to the centre of the reservoir. The Earth is carried through its orbit by attaching a second siphon, with a lateral aperture, to the larger floating vessel; this siphon carries off the water emitted into the circular zone between the rims, by the siphon first described, and the vacated pressure consequent upon its lateral discharge releases an equal opposite pressure, which, becoming active, propels the Earth and the Moon round the Sun conjectively. The water discharged by the last siphon is conducted into a box containing one cubic foot, and when the box is filled, the water is returned in any convenient manner to the reservoir. But this quantity (i. e. one cubit foot) is sufficient to work the whole apparatus for half an hour. By providing a receptacle of sufficient magnitude, an uninterrupted duration of 3 hours may be attained.

There are many curious and beautiful phenomena attending the operation of this machine quite unattainable by wheel work. Each motion is independent of the other; the moon's revolution may be stopped without delaying the earth, and vice versa—and when the Hydraulic Orrery is first put in a condition for action, by exhausting the siphons, it displays those initial and gradually accelerating movements which would actually take place with the mighty system itself, if, AS IN THE BEGINNING, the centrifugal and centripetal forces be supposed coeval with the inertia of matter.

Matanzas, (E. F.) May 14.

There appears to be a belief general among us, that the government of this province has a feeling hostile to the citizens of the United States. I am satisfied it is a most erroneous impression. They visit the Province without passports—they are at liberty to go about as they please.—None but the disorderly become subjects of the vigilance of the Police. Much vexation has been practised by the borderers, and robbery committed; but notwithstanding these circumstances, they do not excite any hostility of feeling against the great mass of the American people. A gentleman is here treated with as much genuine politeness, as in any part of the world.

After what I have said of the character of the Governor, you will be prepared to hear me say, that the people adore him; indeed, they cannot feel they have a government, except when its arm is stretched out to protect their rights against foreign or domestic wrong. I am sure, if such men had been at the head of all the Spanish Colonies, Spain would not have been engaged in the deadly struggle, existing between herself and her trans-atlantic possessions. In proof of this fact we have a striking proof in the administration of the Mexican government by the admiral Apodaca, as I have understood the friend and patron of this worthy gentleman, whom I have, and unavoidably, made the theme of such just and merited eulogy.

The police of St. Augustine is admirable. Among the citizens, drunkenness is discountenanced; indeed, I may say, it is wholly unknown. Neither do we hear of riot in day nor robbery by night; at any time can either stranger or citizen walk the streets unmolested.—And, strange to say, there has never been but one capital punishment inflicted since the commencement of Gov. Coppinger's administration. This was for a murder of the most atrocious description. The people are polite and hospitable, and nearly every one speaks both the Spanish and English languages.

The town of St. Augustine enjoys a very pleasant and delightful atmosphere, like Cadiz and the towns of Spain, it appears planned in an uncomfortable manner, being irregularly laid out, and the streets so narrow, as scarcely to admit of two carriages passing each other.—I say, the town appears badly planned, because when I recollect how differently Charleston and Savannah are laid out, and that with all the difference, and the difference supposed to be so much in their favor, they have been so uniformly, or rather frequently the subject of endemic disease. On the other hand, St. Augustine with its narrow streets and imaginary want of a due circulation of air, has been uniformly healthy.

The narrowness of the lanes, for they are really not to be called streets, in our acceptation of the word, exclude the scorching heat of the sun, thus giving you a good shade all day; and the irregular way in which they lie, prevents the free range of wind which occasions at times the inconveniencies arising from the sand, which we experience in cities built in another manner.

This is a most delightful garden spot, and as in horticulture, are to be found the most valuable and gratifying comforts of life, here shall we be most likely to meet with those productions that have been long and justly thought the greatest luxuries that could be placed on our tables. But as you know the people of Spain are not attached as much as those of Britain to high and luxurious living, so, in the trans-atlantic countries who owe their origin to the two nations; do we observe the same difference, as between the mother countries. Of course, generally speaking, we find the cultivation of many of those articles, that in Charleston and all the Carolina markets would find an unlimited vent and a ready sale, almost wholly neglected. There may be some exceptions, but I think I should be within bounds were I to say that two thirds of each garden is covered with orange and fig trees.

The town may be literally termed an orange grove. The fig, pomegranate, grapes of all kinds, and melons grow here in the highest state of perfection. The fig is nearly twice as large as in South-Carolina, and I am told it is much more delicious in flavor: I am now sojourning at the house of a very wealthy and respectable citizen of this province, and he has two fig trees, each of them measuring the extreme points of the branches, 33 feet. I am informed that to the Southward of this place, and near the end of the cape, all the West-India fruits are cultivated by an individual, who has there fixed his solitary residence.

I shall resume my correspondence, and leaving you to feast in imagination on these delightful fruits, beg to stay here—truly I am, &c.

THE EAGLE.

The beautiful description and character of the American Eagle, given below, is from the pedestrious tour of Estwick Evans, esq.

"Whilst in the Missouri Territory, and not far from the bank of the river, a Bald Eagle, perched upon a tall and blasted oak, attracted my attention. It was in the forenoon, and he viewed the sun with an unblinking eye. Whilst I was admiring the strength of his form, and the majesty of his aspect, a wild turkey flew from a neighboring tree, and alighted on the ground. The eagle immediately pounced upon his prey; but ere he could effect his object the turkey was shot; I might, too, have killed the eagle, but admiration and awe prevented me. I felt he was the emblem and the inspiration of my country; and that at that moment I would not for ten thousand worlds like our's have cut a feather of his wing. There is something wonderfully impressive in the nature of this bird; and it is not surprising that the Romans were devoted to it. When quite a lad, I mortally wounded an eagle, supposing it to be a hawk. It was half an hour before it died, and during this time my heart was filled with mingled emotions of regret and awe. I felt as though I were witnessing the last moments of some meritorious hero, who had fallen upon the hills of his fame. This noble bird fixed his eyes upon me, and without a single blink, supported the pangs of death with all the grandeur of fortitude. I could not endure his aspect. I shrunk into my own insignificance, and have ever since been sensible of my own inferiority."

From the Northern Whig.

The event on which the following lines are founded, happened in 1777, and is thus described by general Gates in a letter to Burgoyne:—"Miss M'Crea, a young lady, lovely to the sight, of virtuous character and amiable disposition, engaged to an officer of your army, was, with other women and children, murdered by the savages. The miserable fate of Miss M'Crea was aggravated, by her being dressed to receive her promised husband, when she met her murderer."

Her lover is coming—her bosom throbs high, [eye,
And love beams enchantingly bright in her
"This night," she exclaims, "before heaven's pure shrine
My warrior youth is forever made mine.
"Is that his dear form stealing slow thro' the shade? [maid?"
Is it thus he would come to his own beloved
Oh, no; 'tis the savage, death flies from his bow,
And life's current sullies her bosom of snow.
The death-lights are gleaming—the anthem swells loud,
O'er her form of pure whiteness, enwrapped in the shroud, [bloom,
The grave is her bridal bed—gone is her
And her morning of splendor hath ended in gloom!
The night-winds are up with the gathering storm, [her soft form;
They wave her dark tresses—they chill
Cold, cold is her heart, once so joyous and light,
Her eye of soft wildness no longer is bright.
Her lover is coming—he speeds on the way,
He chides the long moments of tedious delay; [hour
Hope beats in his breast for that heavenly
Which gives him forever his hearts beloved flower.
He reaches the spot—she is stretched on the bier; [tear—
No sigh rends his bosom—he sheds not a
But, dumb with deep anguish, he hurries amain,
And lies on the battle field, ghastly and slain. FLORIO.

Whitland and Cole,

lying and being in Charles county Maryland, containing between three and four hundred acres. This land is handsomely situated, lying immediately on Matawoman Creek, at least one third of which is in wood, with a sufficient quantity of marsh land for grazing—that part of the land which is in cultivation is well adapted to the growth of corn, wheat and tobacco, and with proper care would be equal, if not superior to any land in that neighborhood. ALSO,

At the same time and place, will be offered for sale the plantation at present in the occupancy of Francis & Sam'l Wheeler, lying about one mile from the above place, containing about four hundred acres. As it is presumed that persons wishing to purchase will first view the premises, it is thought unnecessary to give a more particular description thereof. The terms of sale will be as follows: viz. possession given on the first day of January next, at which time one third of the purchase money will be required, the remaining two thirds at one and two years the purchaser giving bond with approved security with interest.—Upon the payment of the whole purchase money, a sufficient deed will be executed to the purchaser.

Sale of Valuable Land.

BY virtue of a deed of trust, the subscriber will offer at public sale, at Mr. Hardy's tavern, Piscataway, on Thursday, 5th August, next, several tracts or parcels of land, on Mattawoman Run, about three miles from Piscataway, lying partly in Prince George's county, and partly in Charles county, called and known by the names of Strile, Bonton enlarged, Friendship & Smallwood's meadows, Thompson's Hoop Thickets, and four acres of land adjoining, containing in the whole 420 acres, 1 rood, 18 perch. more or less; which said lands were heretofore conveyed by Thomas Mundell, esq. trustee for the sale of the real estate of N. Blacklock, late of Charles co. deceased, to N. F. Blacklock, late of Alexandria, and by him to the subscriber.

These lands have been, I am told, considerably improved lately by the use of clover and plaster: their susceptibility of still further improvement by these easy means, and their nearness to the Potomac, render them certainly very desirable.

Terms of sale—two thousand dollars to be paid on the day of sale, and the balance on the 1st day of January, 1820, when possession will be given. Upon the payment of the whole of the purchase money, the subscriber will execute a good and sufficient deed, conveying to the purchaser all the right and title of the late N. F. Blacklock, subject to the widow's dower.

JOHN HOPKINS

Hill and Dale, April 20.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain; being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ri[illegible], will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be goverued by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment. may 25
